iPhone 8, iPhone 8 Plus and iPhone X — Should I upgrade now or wait for iPhone X?

iPhone 8 and iPhone 8 Plus have finally arrived. So, now the question arises if you should upgrade to iPhone 8 or iPhone 8 Plus now or wait until iPhone X arrives.

Here is a quick comparison of these three models to assist you in making a decision:

iPhone 8 Plus and iPhone X are bigger in size and may appeal less to people who prefer smaller phone size and do not want large handsets.

	iPhone 8	iPhone 8 Plus	iPhone X
iOS	iOS 11	iOS 11	iOS 11
Display size	4.7" (1334x750 326ppi) IPS	5.5" Retina HD (1920x1080, 401ppi) IPS	5.8in Super Retina Display (2436x1125, 458ppi) OLED iPhone X display has a TrueTone, 2436x1125 px OLED display with 1,000,000: 1 contrast ration. OLED display allow true black color display whereas other types of display do not have same color depth as compared to OLED.

iPhone 8 Plus and iPhone X have an optical zoom and can zoom up to 10x. The front cameras (used for selfie or FaceTime) is 7MP in iPhone 8 whereas it is 7MP TrueDepth with Portrait mode and Portrait Lighting (in other words, a better camera)..

Wireless phone charging is available in all 3 models of iPhone Home Button is missing from iPhone X. There is a new way to navigate the interface in iPhone X.

Our verdict — iPhone X offers improved front camera and improved Portrait Mode on rear camera, a little bigger screen, but it has a notch on top of the phone and it is not actually any wider than iPhone 8. Also, the Home button is missing in iPhone X, which may be off putting to some users. For now, iPhone 8 will be good and serve all of our needs.
